Different Lifestyle

Rebecca Moore in her book A Life in the Trees, travels 15,000 km from London to Papua New Guinea. In Papua New Guinea, Rebecca meets the Kombai people. She tells the story of their traditional lifestyle.

Moore lived with the Kombai women and children for three months. Kombai life is very different. They have no watches and no cars. The Kombai get up every morning at sunrise.

Kombai men hunt in the jungle. They can hunt in the jungle for 12 hours. They bring meat to the village. The Kombai also eat cucumbers, mushrooms, and green bananas. The women cook. There is no school for the children. Parents teach their children the traditional life style of their people.

The most important part of Kombai life is building their amazing tree houses. The men, women, and children all help to build a tree house. Each house is 20 m high. The stories of the Kombai people are amazing.
